

Make Money Typing From Home

Got Typing Skills?

Your Typing Career Starts Now

By Krystine Lewis

This is a free e-book. You are welcome to share this with your friends, or subscribers. As with any new endeavor, please note that you must do your due diligence and research everything before you plunge in. This e-book may not be SOLD.

Have you got typing skills? Are you ready to use your skills that you've learned over the years on a new career?

Perhaps you want to do some typing from home? I'll reveal some helpful new career tips to help you land that perfect typing from home job.

1) Make sure that you have top typing skills before you start searching for a career. There are many online tools to build up your speed which will help you increase your speed by 2-3 times more. If you do a search on your favorite search engine and type in the words "typing tutor", you will find many free tutors there to choose from. There is also free typing tests and many personal online trainers to choose from if you do a search this way as well. In no time you'll be on your way to improving your skills.

You can take a free typing test here:

<http://www.perfect-typing-jobs.com/free-online-typing-test.html>

2) There are many online job sites that you can view the latest online jobs. If you follow the directions as stated above using your favorite search engine, you can type in the words "typing job classified sites". There you will find many specific jobs available. Make sure you visit each site and submit your resume. It's important to note that you never have to pay upfront for a typing job. Just continue to submit your resume and be diligent in your quest.

Here are some of my favorites below:

http://www.perfect-typing-jobs.com/online_jobs.html

3) Be confident in knowing that you deserve the best typing job from home. When you are confident and secure in your endeavors you can conquer most things in life.

Locating the Perfect Typing Job

Trying to locate the perfect typing job can be a little tedious or time consuming if you don't know where to look. I'll share with you some of my resources to help you find that typing job.

There are actually 2 types of typing jobs. The first one is a typing job that you can go and work in someone's office for an hourly wage. Or if you are comfortable doing contract work, you could also get paid per the job or by the hour without any benefits.

A lot of small companies are going the route using an outside contract to perform a lot of their typing job work. This gives you some freedom to work the hours you want around your own schedule.

The second type of typing job is working from home which I think would be the perfect typing job. This is also contract work but you can get hired by a company and either they email you your assignments or once a week you go to their office and pick up your assignments and return home to complete the work.

You then can return the work back to them completed and get paid for your work via contract pay. You can complete the typing work on your own time and schedule.

With your typing skills, you could easily search for the perfect typing job via the Internet using the search engines or some very favorite classified sites. Just go to your favorite search engine and type in "typing job/your area" without quotes. Make sure you type in your specific city and state. You'll be very surprised at how many jobs available in your line of work.

With the several inside tips that I've given you here, you'll be typing from home in no time.

Here is something you can do from home using your computer and the Internet:

<http://www.typingamerica.com>

More resources below.

Krystine Lewis

<http://www.typingamerica.com/>

P.S. Here are other resources you may be interested in:

The Perfect Typing Jobs Resource Website

<http://www.Perfect-Typing-Jobs.com/>

and

<http://ReviewWorkatHomeJobs.com>

and

<http://easyhome-job.com>

and

<http://jobsfromhomeguide.com>